We are a First Nations owned off-grid homestead offering Clinical Herbalism and Ancestral Healing with Chantal Gagne and Homestead Establishment Services with David Bailey. Our name, akiikaa, is an Ojibway word that can be interpreted as "the Earth is abundant and fertile." We offer herbal medicines in our botanical dispensary including spagyric tinctures, salves, glycerites, flower essences, loose herbs, elixirs, oxymels, syrups, ciders, tonics, and more! We have a farm and artisan market that is open in early spring through until fall. Our services also include educational offerings. We currently have a 6-month plant medicine and ancestral wellness mentorship starting in January 2026, with the opportunity for an in-person apprenticeship on our homestead following completion of the mentorship. This spring we will be launching our inaugural land-based skills, arts, and music festival. Sign up for our newsletter on our website to stay up to date about all our exciting offerings!

Maritime School of Holistic Herbalism

We know that an herbal education that builds your skills and confidence must be rooted in the land, relationship, community and direct experience.

Our goal is to teach you an approach to herbalism that is ethical, safe and effective, giving you a solid foundational understanding that is immediately applicable to your life. This program has a balance of both hands-on and academic learning, designed to support you in learning through your own experience and applying what you learn directly.

Ten monthly live weekend intensives allow you to learn in community with your peers, while the pre-recorded videos to watch between the weekends offer you flexibility to go at your own pace. You can join weekend classes in person or online, offering the opportunity to live anywhere while studying with us. Whether you're looking to support yourself, your family, or eventually your community, this program is designed to give you the skills and tools you need to be a competent herbalist.

The times we live in deeply need the skills, intention, and heart that herbalists can offer.

Come join us! Our goal is to grow a base of knowledgeable herbalists across the region, who can support the day to day health of friends and family.

Ireland's Hidden Medicine: An Exploration of Irish Indigenous Medicine from Legend and Myth to the Present Day

drrosarikingston.com

Ireland's Hidden Medicine traces the path and fortunes of Irish indigenous medicine from the legendary god of medicine, Déin Chécht, to today. Unlike the great scribal medical traditions, Ireland's indigenous medicine is based on medical knowledge passed on orally to each succeeding generation.

This journey explores the difference in worldview between biomedicine and indigenous medicine, before it sketches the changing fortunes of this indigenous tradition from the coming of Christianity, through the law tracts and the medical manuscripts of the Middle Ages, to its demise with the fall of the old Gaelic order in the seventeenth century. From there the book examines how some knowledge could have disseminated within the wider community before exploring the factors that influenced its decline in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

Irish indigenous medicine is like a diamond hidden in plain sight with its beauty present in the Irish landscape, festivals, and language. Yet its riches are not realized and it is ignored to the detriment of health and wellbeing. Ireland's Hidden Medicine is an important step in changing this. Signed copies are available on Rosari's website, and you can also purchase from Amazon.

Steve Taylor

Facebook

Steve Taylor's interest in traditional approaches to healing and herbs led him on an exploration of the European Humoral system as originally practised in Ancient Greece, and then revived in the sixteenth and seventeenth century by herbalists such as Nicholas Culpeper. It soon became clear that this system of medicine was an informative and sensitive guide in the art of returning the body back to health and he began to embrace it as his main therapeutic approach in his practice, and after many years of study, practice and teaching this approach he published "The Humoral Herbal" in 2021.
